Second fire breaks out

Park cams keep eye out

'Talking' cameras meant to reduce vandalism cases

By TIM WIECLAWSKI
Metro Ottawa

Smile the next time you're playing in the park after 11 p.m. — you may be on camera.

But if you are being filmed, it likely won't be long until you hear about it — literally.

For the cost of $130 a night, the city is renting a mobile Proactive Audio Visual surveillance system in a bid to cut down on cases of loitering and vandalism in city parks after dark.

The video cameras are triggered by motion and images are transmitted to an operator at city hall, who can address the subjects directly through a speaker and warn them they are not supposed to be in the area.

"Some people have described it as the voice of God," Bob Gauvreau, Ottawa's corporate security manager, said of the live-voice feature. "If you are in there at night, you just hear the voice. There is no flashing lights or alarms. I would say 98 per cent of people leave the area immediately."

If intruders do not leave right away, then a security guard, bylaw officer or police can be dispatched, depending on what is happening in the park.

Vandalism in parks has cost the city $169,000 from January 2007 until the present. And a few years ago, the city had a problem with vandals throwing paint or automotive oil into city pools. Damages had hit around $700,000 before camera systems were installed.

Gauvreau said the mobile units work similar to the permanent surveillance systems installed at public pools, several parks and on the 417 pedestrian overpass. The units will be moved to different parks throughout the summer to gauge whether permanent cameras are needed.

Stittsville-Kanata West Coun. Shad Qadri said over the weekend there were a couple incidents when the mobile unit was put to use in his ward.

"Even though it's there to watch at night, even during the day it's acting as a deterrent to others from doing anything," he said.

For those concerned about privacy, Gauvreau insists the system is only activated from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m., and there is software that blanks out property not belonging to the city.

"We don't do any observation during the day," he said. "The role of this equipment is to protect city property. We only view city property, we do not view other people's property."

City urged to move on transit now

O-Train group makes case for LRT expansion

By TRACEY TONG
Metro Ottawa

On the eve of Ottawa's downtown transit decision, O-Train advocates yesterday made a final push for a plan they say would get riders moving in a much shorter period of time.

The future downtown transit option will be finalized today, but Friends of the O-Train said that extending the existing O-Train would get commuters rolling now compared to a rapid transit plan involving a light rail tunnel which will take years and billions of dollars to build.

"The O-Train could be extended by this year or next year easily," said David Jeanes, president of Transport 2000 and a member of Friends of the O-Train.

The group wants the existing O-Train lines extended south to Leitrim Road and north into Gatineau, with east-west service from Orleans to Bayshore, all on existing rail.

Getting the O-Train across the Ottawa River to Gatineau would be no problem, said Jeanes, since the railway is federally licensed to operate in Quebec.

Prince of Wales Bridge, which the city already owns, is structurally sound, added

Jeanes. "This kind of rail upgrade can be done in a few weeks."

The plan would extend the O-Train to areas where there's room to construct park-and-rides, while trains would reduce the number of buses on the streets, Jeanes said.

And additional trains to ride the rails are available inexpensively in Europe, said Friends of the O-Train member Tim Lane.

"We have existing railway lines that can be put into service now," said Friends founder, David Gladstone. "It takes far less space to use the infrastructure that we have. It's not that complicated when you think about it."

Scrap yard sees another blaze

Firefighters battle over an hour to control 2-alarm fire

By TIM WIECLAWSKI
Metro Ottawa

For the second time in three days, a blaze at the same south end metal recycling yard posed challenges for firefighters.

It took fire crews over an hour to extinguish the two-alarm blaze that destroyed a pile of junked cars in the scrap yard at Palmer Recycling, at 3191 Albion Road. There was also a fire at the same scrap yard on Sunday, and last September there was a significant fire at the site.

A large plume of black smoke, drifting toward the northeast, could be seen from much of south Ottawa around 11 a.m. Local resident Natalie Martel said she spotted the smoke while driving on St. Laurent Blvd and near Conroy Road.

"It was thick and black, real black," she said. "We saw it everywhere. The smoke was really big."

Ottawa Fire Service Cap-

Firefighters walk back to their vehicles yesterday after extinguishing a blaze in the yard of a scrap metal recycling business on Albion Road — the second blaze at the site in three days.

tain Dave Clarke said tires among the vehicles that caught fire possibly caused the thick black smoke. "(The vehicles) were all in a huge mound and they were burning."

Investigators are still working to determine how the fire started. There were no injuries, and no damages.

Since fire hydrants on Johnston Road were out of service, fire crews had to use a relay pump and get water from several hundred meters away.

Clarke said the firefighters were prepared this time and using the other hydrants was not an issue.

On Sunday, firefighters responding to the fire at the recycling yard discovered hydrants not in service.

Tammy Rose, Ottawa's

manager of drinking water service, said those hydrants were put out of service in November 2005 and had tags on them indicating that they weren't functioning.

She said the city would have informed the fire department at the time.

She said that is the only location in Ottawa where fire hydrants are out of service.

Archives reopens after flooding

Staff called in to protect materials after burst pipe

By TRACEY TONG
Metro Ottawa

Library and Archives Canada will reopen today after a burst pipe caused damage to a number of books and closed the Wellington Street building early yesterday.

Chief Jim Corrigan said the fire department was called to a major water leak near a washroom on the second floor at 395 Wellington Street at around 2:16 a.m. The water went down about four floors to the second level of the basement and firefighters made chutes out of tarps to divert the water.

"The water damage to the building was zero," Corrigan said.

The Library and Archives

Canada emergency response team, made up of management and preservation and collections staff, was called in and began procedures to protect the collections, said Library and Archives Canada spokeswoman Pauline Portelance.

Portelance said a small number of books were affected, but preservation experts have determined that nothing has been damaged beyond repair.

Published material, stored in the sub-basements, was removed from shelves and transported to freezer units. None of the documents in any of the exhibition rooms have been affected.

Cleaning and collections management staff continued assessing damage yesterday. Further details on the impact of the leak will be determined through evaluation reports.

Man beaten after car crash

An Ottawa man suffered injuries after being beaten on the head in an apparent case of road rage on Monday night, police reported yesterday.

A 54-year-old man was found suffering from head injuries on Equestrian Drive in Kanata, believed caused by repeated blows from a blunt instrument following what paramedics deemed "a minor traffic collision" at about 9:30 p.m. Monday.

He was bleeding and had low blood pressure when paramedics arrived to the scene.

The man had also suffered leg and arm injuries and was transported to hospital in serious condition.

Police are seeking two male suspects in their early-to mid-20s, who were seen leaving the area in a small dark-colored car.

Anyone with information can contact Ottawa police at 613-236-1222, ext. 2266.

Moving not an easy undertaking

CITYSCAPES
TRACEY TONG
tracey.tong@metronews.ca

Home is supposed to be where the heart is, but my entire adult life, I've been content to settle for far less — take my apartment, for example.

First of all, it's in a basement that can only be accessed through the garage. Last summer, I had an infestation of some kind of flying ant and every so often, a large and leggy centipede turns up, scaring the be-jeezus out of me. And I can't control the thermostat.

Still, I was ready to stay because I so hate to move. It stems back to my childhood, when, thanks to my Pop's job (he's a retired bank guy) we lived in a different city every few years. I grew up always being the new kid.

But one night last month, the landlord made an unexpected visit. As of June, my parking space would no longer be available and while

I was offered a discount off my rent to compensate, which was nice, it didn't eliminate the rather large problem of what to do about my car.

I asked a neighbour if I could rent her driveway (she declined). I asked the place where I park for work if I could leave my vehicle overnight (they agreed, but then I realized I'd have to walk home). I was left with relocation as the only feasible solution.

My first viewing was at an apartment in Hintonburg. I thought rent was a little high for a one-bedroom plus parking, water and heat — but the apartment was cute, and had big closets. Then a tenant entered the rental office, insisting someone had entered his apartment and stolen a knife. OK. Next.

I loved the next place — an amazing one-bedroom, just blocks from the Metro office. There were video cameras in the lobby and polished hardwood floors that shone. But at nearly a grand per month, plus parking and utilities, I decided location wasn't that important.

Thirteen buildings later, I was thoroughly confused. Good, affordable apartments in Ottawa are hard to find.

I checked out an apartment a friend had recommended. It was close to work. The lobby was clean and the hallways devoid of cooking odours. Then I saw the Ottawa River view from the huge balcony. It was perfect, and relatively affordable.

But then the boyfriend mentioned that a two-bedroom was opening up just down the hall from his place. Extra space for the dogs. A

« Then a tenant entered the rental office, insisting someone had entered his apartment and stolen a knife. OK. Next. » balcony for lazy Saturday-morning breakfasts. Not one, but two hall closets. It offered the perks of living together, without our parents killing us. And all for a mid-range price, plus parking.

I didn't give it a lot of thought, but before I knew it, I'd sealed the deal. Mike was really excited and I knew I'd made the right choice.

Home may not be where the heart is, but it can be awfully close.

Special Olympic supporters come out in force

Police officers put their feet to the streets for a different kind of patrol yesterday.

City, provincial and military police, RCMP and security officers joined area Special Olympics athletes for the Ontario Law Enforcement Torch Run, from Ottawa police headquarters on Elgin Street to Parliament Hill.

Police across Ontario have adopted the Special Olympics as their cause, said event coordinator for the Ottawa Police Constable Sherry Jordan. Yesterday's run — one of several held across the province — was a fundraiser.

But while raising money is nice, it's also "as much for awareness as anything," said Jordan. "We want to get as many people involved as we can for visibility."

"We have a really close bond with some of the people that take part in the Special Olympics," said Ottawa Police Inspector Mike Flanagan.

"It's important to highlight the cause. It's encouraging to see the numbers grow exponentially each year."

The run proceeded north on Bank Street to cheers from pedestrians and honking car horns before heading east on Wellington Street and arriving on Parliament Hill.

"It's important to have the support," said Christina Campbell, who competed in the Special Olympics World Games in Shanghai last October, taking home a gold medal and four silvers in rhythmic gymnastics.

Critics fear Bill C-51

Legislation would modernize Food and Drugs Act

Fines could soar

» Maximum fines for contravening the act could increase from $5,000 to as much as $5 million.

Bill C-51, legislation — making its way through Parliament — will modernize the Food and Drugs Act for the first time in over 50 years.

"There is a lot of uncertainty around the bill and how it will impact access to natural health products. No one seems to be quite sure," Daniel Chiang, a nutritionist and Toronto clinic owner said.

The confusion has generated controversy. Earlier this month, hundreds of people turned up at rallies across the country to protest the bill.

The Food and Drugs Act regulates the production, transport and sale of food, drug, contraceptive devices and cosmetics, with a focus on ensuring products are safe, ingredients are disclosed and there are no false or exaggerated health claims on the product label.

Among proposed changes in Bill C-51 are greater penalties for rule-breakers, power to the health minister to recall drug products, and improved safety of all products.

But critics — who have been carefully monitoring the progress of the bill, which is awaiting second reading — fear changes to the act will restrict access to natural health products, delay their approval, and give the health minister unprecedented powers of enforcement.

Critics fear the minister would be able to suspend or cancel clinical trials, disclose and demand confidential information, and impose "outrageous" fines for minor infractions — with no mention of an appeal process after such decisions.

Iceland is the world's most peaceful nation while the United States is ranked among the bottom third, according to a study released yesterday.

The "Global Peace Index," compiled by the Economist Intelligence Unit, ranked the United States 97th out of 140 countries according to how peaceful they were domestically and how they interacted with the outside world.

Canada was no longer in the top 10 most peaceful nations. Last year it ranked 8th and this was year fell to 11th.

Small, stable and democratic countries were found to be the most peaceful in the index, with 16 of the top 20 coming from western or central European democracies.

The Group of Eight major economic powers were a mixed bag. Japan ranked fifth, Canada 11th, Germany 14th, Italy 28th, France 36th and Britain 49th. Russia was near the bottom at 131st, the only one in the group below the United States.

Iraq ranked lowest on the index. Afghanistan was also in the bottom five, along with Sudan, Somalia and Israel.

Toll climbs in China quake

At least 40,000 dead as missing count at 32,000

China raised the number of dead or missing from a devastating earthquake to more than 70,000 yesterday, as rescuers found more survivors eight days after the huge tremor hit.

A government statement said the number killed had now topped 40,000, and state news agency Xinhua re-

Authorities had previously said they expected the final death toll to exceed 50,000. More than 247,000 were injured.

Anger was building among bereaved parents in Sichuan over the way many school buildings had collapsed, burying whole classrooms full of children. In one town, in a rare public protest, hundreds demanded punishment for anyone guilty of shoddy construction.

Xinhua reported a 60-year-old woman was rescued in Pengzhou, more than 196 hours after the May 12 quake struck. It said she had survived on rainwater.

Odds makers favour Wings

They've won 16 consecutive games on their home ice, their top gunners — Marion Hossa, Evgeni Malkin and Sidney Crosby — have been on fire and their goaltender, Marc-Andre Fleury, has never been more efficient. And, yet, the Pittsburgh Penguins stand no chance in the Stanley Cup championship series.

This, at least, is the view of professional oddsmakers, who've established the Pens as sizeable underdogs against the Detroit Red Wings for the NHL final, which begins Saturday.

The Wings are $1.60 favourites, meaning wagerers who take them must lay that much to win a dollar. If the Pens prevail, bettors would collect $1.40 for every dollar they placed on them.

My hunch: The Wings take the series in seven. But the Pens, if they re-sign Hossa, win the next three Cups in a row.

Doesn't the NHL's schedule really seem odd now, in retrospect, since the Wings and Pens never met even once during the regular season?

I mean, seriously, how far apart are Detroit and Pittsburgh? A one-hour flight?

Saturn's perky performer

Belgian-made Astra a neat little road-runner

By MICHAEL BANOVSKY
for Metro Ottawa

Much is made about the original philosophy behind GM's Saturn division, which was to lure import buyers from their Corollas and Civics and get them into Saturn's SLs and SCs.

Combined with plastic body panels and no-haggle pricing, General Motors thought they'd created a winner. But the fact always remained that Saturn's products lacked both an American identity and Japanese reliability. It was like going for sushi at McDonald's. Still, the brand ended up outliving Oldsmobile and ditching its oft-touted plastic body panels.

Now, instead of fighting the imports with American innovation, Saturn is battling back with a few imports of its own. The Belgian-made Astra never suffers from a lack of ride comfort or handling over its peers, and the only complaint you'll ever hear handling-wise is from stoplight racers with body piercings and noise violations. But come on. This is an economy car ... and a damn fine-handling one at that.

Between corners, there's

The Saturn Astra

2008 Saturn Astra 5-door XE

- Type: Compact 5-pass. hatchback FWD
- Price: $17,900
- Engine: 1.8L I4 DOHC
- HP: 138 @ 6,300 rpm
- Torque: 125 @ 3,800 rpm

Highlights:

- Style
- Hidden practicality
- European build quality
- Standard safety features sufficient power to crush eggs after grocery shopping. Now, if you decide to read other reviews on the car, the tester will probably say power from the 1.8-litre Ecotec four-cylinder engine is merely adequate. Not so. It's just as much as you'll ever need, with a good torque spread and well-spaced gear ratios to chuff you along.

Top-notch build quality and high-grade plastics combine with clean-cut European style to make the interior one of the best in its class. You'll even notice that an impressive trip computer sits smack in the middle of the car's dash. In lesser models, the information and screen is toned down a notch, but in XR trim with the top-grade stereo, it gets as advanced as a graphic equalizer! The final interesting feature—and class exclusive—is an optional dual-panel sunroof that lightens the interior, sports a large opening and features a sunshade.

Saturn is billing the three-door Astra as the upscale model, with the five-door as the entry-level product at just $17,900 for an XE without air conditioning. The only three-door trim level is XR, for $21,225. Fully loaded, the three-door even comes with 18-inch wheels.

Those shopping for a small car should immediately take a look at the Astra. I've said before that it should make a big impact in Canada. It will. But moreover, strong sales may convince other manufacturers with impressive European and Japanese products to enter the Canadian market with previously unseen technologies. As it stands now, the Astra is a great car and hangs with the class leaders as the final chapter in Saturn's product renaissance.

Few people tire smart: Survey

Under-inflated tires increase driving risks, waste fuel and cause tires to wear out faster but few vehicle owners pay adequate attention to their tires.

A national survey by the Rubber Manufacturers Association showed 85 per cent of American drivers do not properly check tire inflation pressure and there's no reason to think Canadian drivers are any better.

"Record high gas prices should be an incentive for motorists to take every step possible to help make their cars and their money go further," said Dan Zielinski, RMA senior vice president, public affairs. "While our survey found that 61 per cent of motorists agreed that checking tire pressure is very important to maximizing fuel economy, only one in seven drivers properly perform this easy task."

A survey by the Rubber Manufacturer's Association showed that few vehicle owners pay adequate attention to their tires.

recommendation

» The RMA recommends that tire pressure be checked at least once every month with a tire gauge.

Checking tires is not only a fuel saving tip. It can also be life saving. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), under-inflated tires contribute to 660 fatalities and 33,000 injuries each year in the United States alone.

Under inflated tires also cause premature tire wear that can force consumers to replace tires sooner.

Insider's guide to Amsterdam

By INGE TE SCHURE
Metro World News

There's more to Amsterdam than canals, coffee shops, bicycles and the red light district. As well as its museums and the 17th-century houses along the canals, Amsterdam has a lot of surprising sites, undiscovered by the mainstream tourist.

Pay a visit to the smallest house in the world (located at Singel 7), the tiniest museum — the Miniature Museum for Modern Art (Singel 548), the "Magere brug" (skinny bridge, Amstel) or a Buddhist temple (Zeedijk 106-118) in the heart of the city.

All up to Idol viewers

Popularity of singer counts, not technicality

If this competition was actually based on the technicality of the performances of the contestants, David Archuleta would be crowned this year's champion.

But American Idol is a popularity contest. This year's winner will depend on who wowed the viewers more — Archuleta or David Cook.

With three songs each to sing last night, Round 1's songs were chosen by Clive Davis.

Cook sang U2's I Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For, and though he seemed very nervous at the start, once he started singing all that tension evaporated and he did shine like a star.

Archuleta sang Don't Let The Sun Go Down On Me by Elton John, and stood his ground with another flawless number.

Round 2 had them sing one of two possibilities for the winner's song. Cook's rendition of Dream Big sounded like Harem Scarem or something like that from the '80s or '90s. As good as it was, it wasn't very memorable.

Archuleta sang In This Moment — again, another ballad to get all the pre-pubescent girl's hearts fluttering. There was nothing new, but it was a very strong performance.

The final round was competitor's choice. Singing The World I Know by Collective Soul was Cook, but he mumbled most of the song and lost his edge.

Archuleta re-sung Imagine by John Lennon.

It's something we've seen before, but it was amazing.

It may have been the battle of the Davids but in the end it was Goliath — Ruben Studdard — who ended the show with Celebrate Me Home.

Holmes to debut on Broadway

THEATRE Katie Holmes will make her Broadway debut this autumn in a revival of Arthur Miller's All My Sons, starring alongside Oscar winner Dianne Wiest and Tony winner John Lithgow, producers said this week. Holmes shot to fame on the television series Dawson's Creek before marrying Tom Cruise, with whom she has 2-year-old daughter, Suri.

All My Sons is due to open on Broadway this fall, but a theater and date have not yet been announced. The play is based on a true story about a businessman who knowingly sold the government defective airplane parts during World War II with tragic consequences.

Fictional character helps Sarah Slean pen The Baroness

By ROB McMAHON
for Metro Ottawa

Now that she's nearing completion of a degree in music and philosophy from the U of T, Sarah Slean's been asked a few times to compare the two fields.

She said both come from the same desire to answer the amazing, spectacular, terrifying questions that pepper our lives. And the characters Slean creates — like the energetic, red-dress-wearing Baroness of her new album — exist to help her grapple with these issues.

"(The Baroness) is spectacular, larger than life — every time she enters a room there's a 13-piece orchestra there," says Slean. "I considered myself shy and too bookish, and at times socially retarded, so (the Baroness) was helpful as a way of being on stage."

Some characters fit precisely within a single song or short story, while others demand more attention. Asked what made the Baroness a larger-than-song figure (she also appears in Tales of the Baroness, a three-part short film and paintings and poems), Slean said it's not the character itself, which doesn't really fit with the songs. Instead, the goal is to share feelings and experiences through a persona. Comparing her approach to Tom Waits', Slean quoted from his song Cemetery Polka: Uncle Verlin, Uncle Verlin, independent as a hog on ice. He's a big shot down there at the slaughterhouse, plays accordion for Mr. Weiss.

"The Baroness character didn't really seem to fit the songs — she was more vivid and bigger. Then I reconsidered the word 'Baroness' (and came up with) 'Barren-ness', and that totally captured I think what I was telling," she said. "(Waits is) a master at creating 3-D characters. They really come to life in his songs. I'm not doing that at all — I'm consciously moving away from it."

To gather material, Slean occasionally detaches herself from the everyday. She's embarked to a backwoods cabin during her mid-20s ("the existential crisis everyone seems to have in their 20s," she said) and more recently, to Paris for seven months. The object of these trips isn't escape, but rather an immersion in the temporarily foreign.

"If everything is stripped away ... what it is like to be alive — is it worth it?" she said. "Yes it is — and that's what music is about, what people are singing about."

Wilson in sentimental mood

Ex-Beach Boy to release new disc

Brian Wilson will release his first album in more than three years in September, a project that marks his return to Capitol Records, the label where he gained fame with the Beach Boys during the 1960s.

That Lucky Old Sun will come out in the United States and Canada Sept. 2 Wilson and Capitol announced this week.

"It's a great honor to be here and a very sentimental time in my life," said Wilson, 65, looking relatively healthy in a striped polo shirt, faded jeans and slip-on tennis shoes. "I haven't recorded here in 46 years, almost half a century that I haven't recorded here. Ha!"

He said he had fond memories of recording the Beach Boys' 1962 debut, Surfin' Safari at Capitol. Later efforts, such as 1966's Pet Sounds, were recorded at other studios around Hollywood, though the group remained signed to Capitol, now a unit of closely held EMI Group Plc.

Most of Wilson's solo recordings, including his self-titled 1988 debut and 2004's Grammy-winning Smile, have been released by Warner Music Group Corp. His last album, What I Really Want for Christmas, came out in 2005 through Arista Records.

Described by Capitol as "a musical love letter from Southern California," the new album features 11 songs punctuated by spoken-word narratives describing life in Los Angeles.

Picking through the wreckage

IF AT FIRST YOU DON'T SUCCEED: The primetime post-mortem is in full swing, with more than the usual amount of schadenfreude (that's German for feeling good when other people fail) from TV critics everywhere.

Tim Goodman of the San Francisco Chronicle looked back at the dying season and its casualties and came up with a bit of 20/20 hindsight on how the networks could have saved their more notable failures.

The biggest problem, in Goodman's opinion, was an identity crisis that overcame the networks this year, who seemed to have forgotten just what they were good at, and tried to compete with each other on unfamiliar turf.

To wit, Fox's Back To You might have fared better on CBS — conventional wisdom at this point — and the CW's Aliens In America would have been a better

IDIOT BOX
RICK MCGINNIS
rick.mcginis@metronews.ca

fit on Fox.

ABC's Miss Guided might have stood a chance on either NBC or Fox, but Viva Laughlin, which bombed on CBS, probably wouldn't have survived anywhere, since there's no precedent for a musical succeeding on primetime at all — did no one learn from Cop Rock?

One of the season's failures that seems to have already been forgotten is Quarterlife, the sitcom that NBC took from the web to primetime and ditched when it failed to thrive.

There was a flurry of defiantly positive press leading up to the show's primetime premiere, anticipating web-developed shows as the way of the future, creatively and financially, but since Quarterlife proved to have the half-life of a tuna melt on a dock, we haven't heard much in the same vein since. Which is why ABC's decision to pick up In The Motherhood

«Making a sitcom out of an insurance commercial just rubbed everyone the wrong way» for a mid-season debut is so surprising, I hadn't heard of it until Silicon Valley Insider ran a piece on the show's good fortune, but the sitcom has been pulling respectable numbers for its 7-minute online episodes — 16 million streaming downloads of the second season so far, compared to Quarterlife's measly few million.

Goodman, in his post-mortem piece, says that ABC's Cavemen was probably doomed from the start, since "making a sitcom out of an insurance commercial just rubbed everyone the wrong way," so it remains to be seen how Motherhood, which was co-developed by Suave toilettries and Sprint, will win over audiences.

The show, an acidly observational take on modern parenting starring Jenny McCarthy and Leah Remini, is definitely better-written than Quarterlife, if only for the offhanded observation that fanny packs emasculate men quicker than a mishap with a weed whacker. The Insider piece was optimistic about the show's chances, pointing out that it has two name stars, will air on a network known for women's programming, and "is targeted at a demographic that still watches plenty of television: 30-something moms." It also costs a mere US $40,000 a minute to produce, "cheap by TV standards but astronomical for a Web series."

By this point, however, shows should probably be migrating from TV to web, not the other way around, but getting the networks to see this is like getting water to run uphill.

NBC crowns Kings for pickup

PILOT IMPRESSES NBC has picked up a series described as a contemporary take on the David vs. Goliath tale. Kings, which stars Christopher Egan and Ian McShane, is set in a besieged metropolis. It originally was ordered as a two-hour pilot, but NBC decided to proceed with a full series order after executives were impressed by footage from the pilot, which is currently in production.

Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade

"Dad!" "What?" "Dad!" "What?" In the installment where viewers learned Indiana was the family dog's name, Indy and his father (Harrison Ford, Sean Connery) search for the Holy Grail, carry on with attractive women and save the world from the armies of darkness. River Phoenix plays the young Indy in the action-crammed prologue, and Alison Doody co-stars in the 1989 blockbuster. 8 PM on 3 GTV

What caused Shania breakup?

What caused the sudden breakup of Shania Twain and her husband, music producer Robert "Mutt" Lange, after 14 years of marriage? His relationship with another woman, say several sources.

After the separation was announced in a statement, Lange called the split "an unfortunate thing," People.com reports. He added, "It's literally just a growing apart, that's all."

But sources close to the situation say a third party was involved: Marie-Anne Thiébaud, a longtime secretary and manager of the couple's chateau in Switzerland. "Mutt and Marie-Anne left their spouses for each other and are still in a relationship," says one source.

Lange denies the claims. "It's absolutely not the reason (for the separation)," the famously reclusive producer told People magazine when asked about the alleged affair.

Taking time off is risky: Paltrow

Gwyneth Paltrow says that taking time off to be mother to daughter Apple, now 4, and son Moses, 2, made her feel forgotten by Hollywood, People.com reports.

In Cannes to promote Two Lovers, in which she costars with Joaquin Phoenix, the Shakespeare in Love Oscar winner, 35, expanded upon a comment made by Jodie Foster, who noted that Hollywood has a short memory.

"I really did not know if there would be a place for me," said Paltrow. "Jodie Foster was right, especially if you are a woman and especially if you are not 25. Hollywood is pretty cutthroat, and everybody has a short memory. There is always someone who is younger or hotter or prettier."

Lohan facing lawsuit

The fur fuss swirling around Lindsay Lohan has gone legal — the actress has been slapped with a lawsuit for taking a coat without permission, Imdb.com reports. Masha Markova claims the star took her $12,000 mink coat as she left a New York club at the end of a night out in January.

The New York student has filed papers in Manhattan's state Supreme Court. She went public with the missing coat saga when she spotted Freaky Friday star Lohan wearing her mink in a magazine photo.

The digits 1 through 9 will appear exactly once in each row, each column, and each zone. (A zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine of these zones in the puzzle.) Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same 3x3 zone, or in the same row across the puzzle, or column down the puzzle.
